Winter 2012 trip Gréolières in the Maritime Alps, France 5th to 12th February

Get your place quick on our regular February trip to Greo!

This stunningly beautiful and historic region probably gives the most reliable year round flying in Europe. Flying on offer can include smooth big top-to-bottoms, UK style ridge soaring and the possibility of some decent height gains in thermals. The sites are from 700 to over 2000 feet top to bottom and include classic mountain-top take-offs, long ridge runs, flying out over scenic villages. The weather at this time of year is usually cool air with bright blue skies. Despite being winter we often have some pretty decent thermals.

Gréolières is about 50 minutes drive inland from Nice airport. The village has classic medieval narrow street and is perched above the river Loup. We stay at the Gite de Cheiron set on the edge of the village amongst the oak trees on the mountain side...

Who are the trips for?

The trips are open to a wide range of pilots; You may be at the end of the experience spectrum where you have your EP rating and are looking for a quick way to progress through your CP course. Alternatively you could have many years of flying behind you and looking for a chance to get some flying while the gales continue across the UK. Wherever you are in your progress as a pilot we will be able to help you move forward with your piloting skills and confidence.
